

ITASCA POTATOES ARE SOLD IN NORTH DAKOTA

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 30.—
(Special to The Herald.)—C. M. Somers returned Thursday from North Dakota, where he went with a carload of potatoes, which he disposed of to good advantage.

The potato market in Cohasset is rushing, though the prices are not at all good, around 50 cents a bushel being the prevailing price. Henry Grober loaded out a couple of cars, and J. M. Jewell left this week with a car. Many potatoes are being brought in and several cars are to be shipped in the near future.
