IT IS VERY SURPRISING

That Remarkable Board of Visitors' Report.

UNAUTHORIZED STRICTURES ON TWO DEPARTMENTS.

The Sub-Committee to Whom the Classes in Greek and Psychology Were Especially Designed, Found Them Ably Conducted and Saw No Ground for Criticism—Supt. Wells Again Shows the Animus of His Attack by an Abusive and Threatening Letter.

To the Editor of The Sentinel:

As a member of the Board of Visitors of the State university, I cannot help expressing my surprise at the contents of the report of the board, inasmuch as it contains some elements which had not, to my knowledge, been mentioned among the members of the board during the entire year.

My surprise was especially great that criticism should have been bestowed adversely upon the departments of Greek and psychology, which were among the departments assigned to the sub-committee, of which I had the honor to be chairman. One of my colleagues on this committee wrote to me that he had no criticisms to offer. From the other members I had heard none and so, in sending my apology for not attending the final meeting of the board, being detained by a church convention following upon the same day I wrote, that very sub-committee had no criticisms to offer nor suggestions to make. Nor was their failure to criticise due to lack of opportunity or neglect of duty during the year, since the members of our sub-committee had taken special pains to inform themselves as to what was being done in the departments of Greek and psychology. In Greek, we listened to recitations and critical explanations by the professors, which would have done credit to any Greek recitation room in the country, and it is to be presumed that any criticisms with which the public has been regaled have come from persons unfamiliar with the Greek language and literature, and who have not had the pleasure of attending recitations in Greek at Madison.

As regards the department of psychology, the criticism occasions still greater surprise, inasmuch as the department is adorned by a professor of brilliant attainments, who is destined, through his independent researches, to earn a world-wide reputation. The report, as it stands, does grievous wrong to very worthy and able professors and totally misrepresents the sub-committee, which alone was authorized to report on these matters.

No argument against the ability of a professor may be drawn from the small number of students in his department. The modern system of 'electives' undoubtedly has many advantages, but it certainly presupposes a wisdom on the part of the young beyond their years. Some students are exposed to the temptation to elect what is 'easy,' while, at the same time, we recognize the pernicious modern tendency to reduce all education to a commercial basis and to study 'what will pay.' Now Greek and psychology are not easy and it would be difficult to compute their commercial value, while both are essential factors of a broad education. It follows from these reasons, not to mention others, which might be adduced, that the number of students 'electing' Greek or psychology is much smaller than those which crowd the recitation rooms where other studies are pursued. The fault is not in the professors, but is to be found in the atmosphere and environment of modern and especially of Western life, where the young are not brought up, as in the East, under the traditions of classical and broader culture.

The same argument might be applied to the departments of Hebrew and Arabic, grand languages, with noble literatures, yet the students are few. One would not think of arguing, however, that the small number of the students indicated any lack of knowledge or of teaching ability on the part of the professors. I have no knowledge as to the origin of that part of the report concerning the departments of Greek and psychology, but, in justice to very worthy professors and in justice to the sub-committee, entrusted with these departments, I ask your publication of the above facts and considerations.

CHARLES STANLEY LESTER,
Member of Board of Visitors, University of Wisconsin.

WELLS IS "WICIOUS."

He Writes an Abusive and Threatening Letter About the University.

To the Editor of The Sentinel:

MADISON, Wis., June 30.—I am glad President Raymer has taken the matter into The Sentinel, where the people can learn the conduct of this important branch of public business. This controversy has grown out of the proposition to increase the compensation of the entire instructional force of the State university. Omitting personal abuse as not argument, but intended to divert attention from the main issue, the discussion turns upon the propriety of the increase.

It should be borne in mind that the legislature, at its last session, made an appropriation for two specific purposes. First, to the construction and equipment of three important buildings, and second, the repair of the old ones. It furthermore provided that whatever remained of the appropriation, after the fulfillment of these requirements, should be devoted to the general purposes of the university. Before letting the contract for the construction of a single building, and without ordering repairs upon one of the old ones, the board orders this large increase in salaries. By what right is any part of this appropriation diverted to this use? It may be said that the income will be sufficient to warrant the outlay. If so, it is proper to add that a note for $10,000, bearing 6 per cent. interest, given by the board some years ago in part payment for the lower campus, came due at or near the time of the annual meeting. Its payment was postponed on the ground of lack of funds to liquidate the obligation, and the note was continued at the present high rate of interest.

I had made no opposition to an increase of salaries to those who had earned it. My objection was to an indiscriminate increase without regard to competency and efficiency. It will not be seriously maintained that all of the professors are equally worthy. Some have richly earned promotion, and I earnestly urged suitable recognition of their efforts by allowing them better pay. I stated to the board that there were some professors of great personal worth and scholarly attainments who lacked force and inspiration, and whose inefficiency was greatly detrimental to the university. I objected to a partial relief of these professors from work with increased pay, and the employment of other professors to do their work at full salaries. I also deprecated the lamentable lack of industry on the part of a great body of students, and the absence of a love for study and attainment. I stated that while this deplorable condition was in a measure attributable to the inefficiency of many of the instructors, it could not be wholly accounted for in this way, but did not attempt to assign a reason for it. Opinions will doubtless differ upon this question. It cannot be denied that the presence of a scholarly and inspiring teacher at the head of the university contributes powerfully to the enthusiasm and industry of the pupils. That they have such a man as president of the university will probably not be contended by any one. His presence there is due to other considerations than scholarship. Having failed upon the platform in an attempt to appear before the students in an intellectual effort, as his predecessor was accustomed to do, he long since abandoned labors in that direction. In all the lines of effort that contribute to the greatness of a university there has been a manifest lowering of the work under his administration. His reputation is based upon numbers and noise rather than comprehensive and accurate scholarship. The well-nigh endless multiplication of courses, with high sounding titles, distracts the attention of the pupil from those studies which lead to great acquisitions and intellectual power. Instead of a school for mental training, the tendency is towards an industrial institution and the teaching of handicrafts.

The Executive committee enthusiastically recommended the establishment of a chair of commercial science, as if foresight and sagacity could be imparted by formal instruction. It is hardly possible that the university could, by means of a separate course, give the shrewdness and competence of Jay Gould, and they probably would not care to inculcate his morals and methods. The training which will best insure success in business is one that gives mental alertness and power, combined with habits of patience, continuous and logical thinking. Possessing these, with a large fund of information and broad sympathies, the details of any business may be quickly and easily mastered by any one, and in no other way except through a long and laborious apprenticeship. Hence the folly of the "short cuts" and "soft snaps" provided in the special courses of the university.

My acquaintance with the management of the finances of the university leads to the conviction that similar looseness and prodigality would be fatal to any business enterprise not supported by taxation. The heads of departments, perhaps generally after consultation with the president, purchase whatever they please, and the bills are presented to the Executive committee for audit. Once a month this committee meets and passes over them superficially and carelessly, and approves them without protest. The members of the board of regents, aside from this committee, know absolutely nothing of the financial management or condition of the university. They have presented to them annually a statement of the amount still unexpended of the appropriations for the preceding year, with an estimate of the income for the succeeding year. Beyond this they are totally ignorant of its financial affairs. When some especially questionable action of the Executive committee needs endorsement, a resolution is presented by them approving the action of the committee, and this is passed by the board without consideration. In this way the expenses for the line of hacks which stood day after day for weeks before the capitol at the service of the members of the legislature was approved, though the bill for this expenditure was not, to my knowledge, ever presented in such a form that it could be identified. I objected to this endorsement on the ground that it was wrong to use the people's money to bribe their representatives in the legislature to appropriate more money to the university. Of course this and opposition of a like nature in other cases was offensive to that honorable committee, and my name has been stricken from it so that their acts may not hereafter be in danger of publicity. In order that the public may know how business is conducted, I append a few orders copied from the records.

I do need $2,000 for Farmers' Institutes to pay outstanding bills and to prosecute the work for the next two weeks.

(Signed) W. F. MORRISON,
Supt. Farmers' Institutes.

Madison, Jan. 19, 1891.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 19, 1891.—E. F. Riley, Esq., Sec'y:—MY DEAR SIR:—Please honor requisition of W. F. Morrison, superintendent agricultural institutes, for a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars ($2,000), that sum having been transferred by Secretary of State Cunningham to the treasurer of the Board of Regents.

Truly yours,
(Signed) L. S. HANKS.

For Agricultural institutes I will need $6,000.
(Signed) W. F. MORRISON, Supt.

Madison, Feb. 2, 1891.

I have never seen an itemized statement of these expenditures. Mr. Raymer charges me with an attack upon the high schools, especially those upon the accredited list. He knows well that I never mentioned one of them in any of the meetings of the board, nor even remotely alluded to them. The criticisms passed upon them by The Milwaukee Journal were made entirely without my knowledge and do not in any manner represent my sentiments. President Raymer may well omit further personal abuse until he has answered the inquiries of the attorney general in regard to large sums due the state on former printing contracts. Mr. O'Connor promises him an early interview wherein he can testify under oath. His present attitude to the administration will be understood when it is known that they have constantly to disallow his bills presented grossly in excess of his contract. In the near future he will publicly avow the character of the man who is now president of the board of regents. The chairman of the Executive committee is already known through the publication of the conspiracy by which the school fund income was robbed of nearly $4,000 through the purchase and sale of the Madison city redemption bonds. I trust these will not be interpreted as "glittering generalities," since they are matters of public record. I commend to them, therefore, a careful husbandry of their resources of vituperation."

BURGLAR PHILLIPS PARDONED.

Gov. Peck Lets Him Out on Condition That He Let Whisky Alone.

MADISON, June 30.—Gov. Peck on Saturday last granted the application for a pardon to David Phillips, of Racine, a young man who was sent up for two years for burglary. Young Phillips' offense was the breaking into a car and stealing beer, which he and a companion drank. The act coming within the statute defining burglary, the jury could not do otherwise than find him guilty. The application for a pardon was accompanied by a petition signed by the former employer and co-workers of Phillips. Gov. Peck granted the pardon on condition that Phillips abstain from intoxicating liquors, and with the agreement that he should have his old position in a Racine factory back again and be treated as a man by his fellow workmen.

Central Wisconsin Doctors.

MADISON, June 30.—The Central Wisconsin Medical society held its annual meeting in the Agricultural room in the capitol to-day. A large number of physicians were present and the meeting was a success. After the business meeting in the morning, dinner was taken at the Hotel Ogden. In the afternoon and evening papers were read as follows: "The Etiology and Pathology of Diabetes," Dr. George Keenan, Madison; "The Treatment of Dabetes," Dr. Philip Fox, Madison; "Lithotrity or Litholapaxy," Dr. William Meacher, Portage; "Treatment of Diphtheria," Dr. F. R. Salisbury, Oregon; "The Standard of Calibre for the Normal Male Urethra," Dr. J. A. Jackson, Madison; "The Use of Barium Iodide in Chronic Tonsillitis, Pharyngitis and Nazo-pharyngitis," D. Town Library Laws.

MADISON, June 30.—The state superintendent prepared a pamphlet which was issued to-day containing the laws pertaining to township libraries and a list of books to be kept in them. The list given is small but select and makes an excellent nucleus around which to form a more pretentious school library. It is invaluable for teachers who are trying to introduce libraries in district schools.

Important Real Estate Deal.

RICHLAND CENTER, June 30.—An important real estate deal took place here to-day, when Pease Bros. & Co., one of the leading banking firms of this section, purchased a site in the center of the city, on which, in the near future, they will erect a three-story structure, calculated to be the finest business block in the city, and one of the most complete bank buildings in this section.

Working for Hartley Clifford.

RACINE, June 30.—A petition and letters have been sent from this city to Madison in favor of a pardon for Hartley Clifford, the murderer of Wm. R. Pugh. Some of the letters state that the members of the dead captain's family secured names to their petition against the pardon by intimidation. This the Pughs' emphatically deny.

The Racine Swell Accused of Larcency.

RACINE, June 30.—The case of the state vs. Carl Mellows, charged with stealing shawls from the Racine Woolen mill and presenting them to Rose Vermont, of Milwaukee, was called in justice court to-day. An adjournment taken to Thursday morning, pending the arrival of Mellows' father from Boston.

State News in Brief.

A new board of examining surgeons for the pension bureau is to be established at Portage.

Two hotels are to be built in the vicinity of the new Northwestern railway depot in Fond du Lac.

J. C. Lewis, a Milwaukee traveling man, was thrown from his carriage at Sheboygan and badly hurt.

The Rev. Sophia Gibb will leave the Decatur church, and will probably accept a call to the People's church at Janesville.

An accident to one of the machines in the Hanka brickyard at Neenah, necessitated the shutting down of the plant for at least two weeks.

Mannville, Marathon county, will soon be deserted, the Henry Sherry mill having been shut down because all the pine of that vicinity has been cut.

The large new barn of Henry Edgar, near Monticello, was struck by lightning and totally destroyed yesterday. The loss is $2,500, partly covered by insurance.

James Thornton, who died in the Walworth county poorhouse last week, was the first white man to look upon the city of Whitewater, who afterward became one of its citizens. He was through that section early in the twenties as a member of one of the Northwest company's trading and trapping parties.

The Wisconsin Central Railway company's ore shipments from Ashland have doubled in six days and the company is now in a fair way to ship a great deal of ore, as the Ashland mine has commenced to ship more freely. This mine furnished half of the ore that left the dock during the week. The total shipments from the two docks for the week was 52,781.

Reduction of Dressed Beef Rates.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 30.—At the meeting of the freight committee of the Central Traffic association, to further consider the notice of the Michigan Central of a proposed reduction in the dressed beef rate to Boston, authority was received from Chairman Blanchard to reduce the rate from 46½ cents to 45 cents per 100 pounds, taking effect July 3.

THE CHICKASAWS LIED

Only Nine Intruding Cattle Men Found in the Nation.

RECENT SENSATIONAL RUMORS WITHOUT FOUNDATION.

Swindling Schemes of the Chickasaws Permit Collectors in the Indian Territory — Agent Bennett Recommends That the Work of Expelling Intruders Be Suspended, as Most of the Cattle Men in That Section Are Law-Abiding Men.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—Some time ago the secretary of the interior, acting upon the persistent appeals of the Chickasaw Nation of Indians, directed the agent at Paul's Valley to remove forthwith all intruders from the nation. The first report since the date fixed for the removal has been received from Agent Bennett, of Paul's Valley, by Commissioner Morgan. He says:

"Six days of fifteen hours each vigorous work, using 100 Chickasaw Indian scouts over a section eight by fifty miles, has disclosed nine intruders, six of whom were given ten days to gather their cattle and get out; one brush hiding, the other two were placed in charge of Chickasaw militia with orders to remove to Oklahoma. Instead thereof, the captain of militia hired one as cook and one as teamster. This is in a section of country certified by Chickasaw authorities to contain 300 families of intruders. Many names listed as intruders by Chickasaw authorities are fictitious; many others have had permits for years; others are old decrepit Mexican war veterans who live entirely upon their pensions, of whom no permit has been demanded; others widows and aged men who have never been asked to pay for permits; others are fathers and mothers on visits to their inter-married children, others are ministers of the gospel, of whom no permit has ever been demanded. The intruder list I have been working on was made by a young white man, and not by any Chickasaw official. Facts have been grossly misrepresented to Chickasaw authorities and by them to agency and department. So marked has this been the case that Gov. Byrd has left the work and is now at home. Not one individual has been found and but three reported as having refused to pay permit tax. Chickasaw officials give scores of persons until fall to pay their tax and this has been the usual custom for years. The Chickasaw permit collector has issued hundreds of permits which were not reported by them to national authorities, which were paid for in good faith and are now held by non-citizens listed as intruders, who also hold permits for each year of their previous residence in Chickasaw nation.

"This movement has thus far resulted mostly in unmasking the swindling schemes of these permit collectors, some of whom are fugitives from justice. The course pursued by me has been rigid, yet just and equitable toward all concerned. Any other would be inhuman and barbarous. No one can be more solicitous than I to deliver the Chickasaw nation of intruders, but those listed as such by the Chickasaw government are, with rare exceptions, law-abiding men who are in the nation with the consent of the national authorities, evidenced by permits issued by legally qualified officers. I have been grossly deceived by representations of Chickasaw authorities. So has the department. I am sure you will approve of my course when advised in detail by letter, but I shoulder all responsibility in recommending suspension of the work. If, however, in the face of the above stated facts you desire to prosecute the work I will continue until you send a special agent or inspector to investigate and report."

CARROLL AND KENNEDY CO

Glove Fitting Mitts

MITTS constituted the burden of our song yesterday and must again to-day.

A charming assortment we have of those glove-fitting MITTS, in fine Milanese and Jersey Silk.

The MITTS for evening wear, especially, every lady should see. They are the most dressy thing worn by society ladies this season.

We have the latter in all lengths, and ranging in price from 75c to $1.50.

The shorter lengths of Milanese and Jersey Silk Mitts range from 25c to $1.00.

Then we have an inferior quality, which for occasional wearing looks almost as well as the finer grades. These sell at from 15c to 25c.
